NEW METHOD IS FOUND FOR HARVESTING COTTON

TEXAS AND OKLAHOMA GROWERS HAVE ADOPTED COST-SAVING PROCESS LARGELY.

Low cotton prices this season have stimulated in Texas and Oklahoma a great increase in a low-cost method of harvesting cotton which was first practiced about 10 years ago. This is the use of sleds or strippers for pulling or snapping cotton from the stalks. Two main types of sleds are in general use, the United States Department of Agriculture. One type is adapted for harvesting small cotton (the kind usually grown in the Staked Plains area) and the other for harvesting cotton where the plant has a more vigorous growth. The latter type is used chiefly in the bottom lands of the plains area, and in some areas farther east.

Although this method of harvesting cotton often leaves 15 per cent. or more of the crop in the field, it is immensely cheaper than picking. It is considerably cheaper than snapping cotton by hand. It is obviously advantageous, in seasons like the present one, when cotton prices and labor rates are such that the crop will hardly stand the expense of harvesting by picking or snapping. Indeed, it is generally believed by the cotton farmers that sledging is only an emergency method of harvesting. Nevertheless, some producers contend that sledging has come to stay, and that great improvement will be made in this harvesting method. Others say that cotton sledging under ideal conditions is of about the same quality as the usual run of snapped or pulled cotton. But where fields are grassy or where badly constructed sleds are used, the method may give poor results.

Other conditions besides low cotton prices may favor the spread of cotton sledging. Among them are scarcity of labor and early frosts. In the newer cotton areas of Texas and Oklahoma, where machine methods of picking cotton are being introduced, the problem of harvesting labor in the cotton fields arises. Furthermore, the picking operation becomes too difficult after killing frosts, because the bolls then break off the stalk at a touch. Sledging partially solves the double problem of economizing on the problem of harvest labor in the cotton fields arises. Although sledging cotton has been described as simply a mechanical means for snapping or pulling cotton, the operation is not really adequately described by the terms snapping and pulling. The sleds have toothed arrangements not unlike mower guards. They strip all bolls from the stalks, regardless of their state of maturity. Naturally considerable foreign material is harvested at the same time. This at first caused some growers to oppose the use of the sled, but recently they have shown less opposition. Sledging was used on an enormous scale in the western part of the cotton area the past season. Data are being compiled by the department as to the amount of cotton harvested in this way. Estimates of the amount of snapped and sledged cotton in Texas and Oklahoma run from three to four million bales, which is a good portion of the amount for the entire country. More than half of the cotton in the semi-arid regions of Texas and Oklahoma was harvested by sledging. The method is most applicable in areas where the height of cotton is rather uniformly from 12 to 15 inches. Small, dwarfed cotton stalks are universally found in the semi-arid regions. A sled has been devised for harvesting cotton from the taller stalks, but this is not the demonstrated success that the ordinary sled has been on the shorter cotton.

SUNDAY SCHOOL WORKERS TO MEET IN STATESBORO

The Sunday school workers of Statesboro and Bulloch county will come together for a two session convention-institute at the Methodist church, Statesboro, Friday, February 25th, according to announcement from Hinton Booth, one of the local leaders in the Sunday school movement. The sessions will be held at 4:00 and 8:00 p. m.

Because of the wide range of subjects to be discussed, all who are interested in Sunday school education and children and youth, are invited to both sessions of this institute. This includes pastors, superintendents, officers, department superintendents, teachers, young people in training and parents. The special speaker at the institute will be Robert D. Davis, director of the Department of Organization and Promotion, International Council of Religious Education, an organization that represents the federated Sunday school forces of America. R. D. Davis, general superintendent of the Georgia Sunday School Association, is expected also to deliver one or more addresses. The subjects to be discussed at the institute, it is said, will include "Securing More Time for Religious Education," "Adapting Religious Education," "Leadership Training," "Organizing for Religious Education."

WORKINGMEN PROSPER UNDER PROHIBITION LAW

Waterbury, Ohio, Feb. 15.—A series of building and loan associations in the United States have almost tripled since national prohibition became effective January 16, 1920, according to a statement issued here today by national headquarters of the Anti-Saloon League of America.

"The fact that the American people have more money to invest in legitimate business enterprises, is the strongest argument for the prohibition of alcohol in this country," the statement said. "From an economic viewpoint alone, there is every reason why prohibition and prosperity should be continued."

The statement quoted figures of the National Building Association League to show that in 1919, the year before the advent of prohibition, assets of building and loan companies amounted to $2,125,620.00 as compared with $6,280,000.00 in 1926. The number of building and loan associations increased from 8,000 to 12,800 in the same period, and the number of depositors from 4,964,000 to 11,275,000.

MISS RUTHERFORD HEAD OF SPEAKERS BUREAU

NOTED U. D. C. WORKER WILL TAKE LEADING PART IN STONE MOUNTAIN WORK.

Much interest attaches to the announcement that Miss Mildred Rutherford, of Athens, one of the South's best known and best loved women, is organizing in Georgia a state-wide speakers bureau to assist in the campaign now being conducted by the Stone Mountain Memorial Association for the enrollment of children in the juvenile department of the Memorial, known as the Children's Founders' Roll.

Miss Rutherford will name a prominent man or woman in every county of the state to co-operate with the local organization for the enrollment of children, and plans to conduct an intensive campaign through the speakers bureau.

"Children are given a special department in almost every institution of modern life," states Miss Rutherford in a letter outlining her plans. "Children have made notable contributions to the erection of notable monuments in this and other countries. It is therefore eminently fitting that the children should have a special department in the Stone Mountain Memorial, and such a department has been established. To me, it is a wonderful thought that the boys and girls are to be included among the builders of this great monument, so that it shall pass into the keeping of a generation who will cherish and safeguard it because they had a part in its creation."

Notwithstanding the fact that my personal affairs and other pressing domestic affairs weigh heavily upon me, I have determined to devote to this effort for the Stone Mountain Memorial a great deal of time and hard work. The quota of children allowed to Georgia is 97,000, and I am very anxious that our state, which is the home state of the Memorial, should lead the rest."

Miss Rutherford is one of the South's foremost historians and educators, and for many years was president of Lucy Cobb Institute, at Athens. She has devoted much time and pains in the correction of errors and false statements concerning the South's position in the memorable struggle of the Sixties. Men and women throughout Georgia, the South and the nation admire her for her wonderful intellect, and esteem her for her many noble and unselfish qualities of character.

For many years Miss Rutherford has been a leader in the United Daughters of the Confederacy, the Confederate Southern Memorial Association, and other patriotic organizations. She was formerly historian-general of the U. D. C., and also was historian of the Georgia division of the U. D. C. for many years, having resigned that position a few weeks ago. She has been on the board of directors of the Stone Mountain Memorial Association for several years, and is a vice-president of the association.

The twenty guests wore valentine costumes.

Little Miss Arabel and Master Basil Jones, the attractive children of Mrs. Basil Jones, were joint hosts on last Wednesday afternoon at a birthday party, Arabel being six and Basil four. Sixty little guests were invited to join them at the home of their grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Outland, on Broad street, where they entertained. Ice cream cones and crackers were served. The individual birthday cakes were displayed in the dining room, each bearing the requisite number of pretty candles.

JOLLY FRENCH KNOTTERS.

On Friday afternoon the Jolly French Knotters met with Mrs. Guy Wells at the Normal School. After an hour spent in sewing, three new members were welcomed into the club. Each member present was given a slip of paper on which three names were written and requested to write a word of advice beginning with each letter in the name, this being a unique feature of the afternoon. The hostess served a pretty salad course with hot tea.

EVERETT-BRANTLEY.

Of cordial interest to their many friends, the marriage of Miss Daisy Everett, daughter of Mrs. H. G. Everett, to Mr. Irving Brantley of Macon, formerly of this city. The wedding occurred Monday, February 14th, at 8 o'clock in the morning at the Methodist parsonage, with Rev. J. E. Parker, pastor of that church, performing the impressive ring ceremony. Mrs. Brantley, the youthful bride, wore a becoming traveling suit of blue and tan crepe with accessories to match. They left immediately after the ceremony for Macon, where they will reside. Only the closest of the bride's friends witnessed the ceremony.

EVENING BRIDGE.

Among the lovely parties for the young set was that given by Miss Nell Martin on Monday evening. She held the Valentine idea in decorating her home, hearts and jossinis forming the effective decorations. Her attractive place cards were hand-painted valentines. Valentines were also given as favors. Delightful composites of red and white mints were on each table. The Valentine idea was further displayed in the lovely ice course. Top score prize for the girls was won by Miss Mattie Lou Brannen. She was given a lovely box of candy. Miss Edna Miller, making low score, was given a pin cushion. Beamon Martin made top score for boys and received a carton of cigarettes. Herman DeLoach as low score prize. Mrs. G. M. Strickland assisted the mother of the hostess in serving. Guests were invited for six tables of bridge.

WEINER ROAST.

The officers of the While Away Club entertained the members of the club and their husbands Friday evening with a Valentine party at the home of Mrs. Dell Anderson on Zetterow avenue. The lower floor, which had been thrown together for the occasion, was lovely with pot plants, cut flowers and valentine decorations. Tiny valentines which had been cut to match, were used to pair the couples for cards. Each table bore its number on a large red heart placed in the center of the table. At the beginning of the game each lady was presented with a red cap bearing white hearts while the gentlemen wore white caps with red hearts. After a most enjoyable hour of cards, a beautiful salad course with an iced drink was served in which was carried out the valentine idea in every detail. At a late hour the guests were assembled in the sun parlor to draw buckets of water from an old well which had been created in the center of the room and which was presided over by Carol Anderson, representing a lady. Under the bucket was drawn a heart bearing an old-fashioned valentine rhyme, very affectionate in nature. The guests were asked not to read these valentine sentiments until all had gathered in the music room to enjoy this bit of fun together. The two lucky valentines were drawn by Mrs. F. I. Williams and Rufus Brewer. They were given beautiful valentines as the reward. Those entertaining were Mrs. Dell Anderson, Mrs. Ben Deal, Mrs. Lettifer DeLoach and Mrs. M. E. Grimes, who were lovely in exquisite valentine costumes.

SOUTH CAROLINA NOW RULED BY BLUE LAWS

CAPITAL CITY CLOSED BY CON-STABLES FOLLOWING ORDERS FROM GOVERNOR RICHARDS.

Columbia, S. C., Feb. 20.—Columbia business was closed tighter than the proverbial drum today following announcement made yesterday by Governor John G. Richards that he had instructed his constables to enforce South Carolina's "blue laws" forbidding work for profit or worldly amusement to take place on Sunday.

Drug stores, cigar and refreshment stands and filling stations were not open for business the greater part of the day, but last night some mobile owners who had stocked up on "gas" last night shared their supply with less foresighted ones whose cars had stalled in the streets for the want of fuel. Restaurants sold food but no tobacco.

Although the sale of drugs was exempted from the general order enforcing the century-old laws which were re-enacted in 1922, drugstores of the city at a meeting held last night decided to keep their stores closed until midnight tonight.

Filling station keepers who had many cases were undecided whether or not to do business today, as the governor's statement that he would clamp down the Sunday law was generally broadcast only late yesterday. A few stations which opened for business this morning were closed by state detective W. W. Rogers, governor's constable, who had recently attained note as the investigating agent in the Lowman lynching at Aiken, and other constables. No arrests were reported, the dealers in every case consenting to close as soon as the order was made known to them.

Local police officers took no part in enforcing the law and reports from other of the larger cities throughout the state were that the usual Sunday business was being conducted.

Although the state law regulating Sabbath observance are of at least a hundred years' standing and have been supplemented by local ordinances in many of the smaller cities of the state, where Sabbath observance has been generally enforced, the state law similar to those on the books of many other states, prohibits practice of a person's calling or trade for profit on Sunday or of Sunday sports or amusements such as hunting, fishing or baseball. Exemption is made for work of necessity or mercy.

Greenville, Spartanburg and Greenwood reported that filling stations remained open as usual, city police officers giving that they received no orders from the governor on the matter. Tobacco and refreshment stands in Spartanburg remained closed due to a city ordinance, but in the other two cities there were no restrictions on their operations.

No indication was given by the governor whether he would consider a permit system to allow persons in emergency cases to buy gasoline. This system has been used under local ordinances in certain communities.
The governor said yesterday, however, that allowances should be made for emergency cases and that his order did not contemplate interference with the production and sale of newspapers or with public transportation.

DONATIONS SOLICITED FOR STATESBORO PUBLIC LIBRARY

Tuesday, February 22nd, was designated as Library Day throughout Georgia. It was intended that on that day opportunity should be given for those who cared to do so to make donations to the libraries in their respective communities. These donations either to be in cash or suitable books. Inasmuch as the necessary publicity was not given in advance, those in charge of the States-boro public library desire that attention should now be called to the public and that it should be made known that contributions will yet be thankfully received. A recent report of the secretary that more than 1,000 books were loaned by the library during the past six months, gives indication of the service which is being rendered by it in this community. The library is located in the office of the city clerk. Books or other contributions may be left with the young lady in charge there.

HAGINS GROWS CABBAGE FOR DISTANT MARKETS

George C. Hagins, a young farmer of the Hagins district, brought to the Times editor yesterday a cabbage from his truck garden just as a specimen of what is possible in that line in his section. Mr. Hagins stated that he has eight acres in cabbage from which he is now supplying a number of distant markets. Truck vendors are taking his product at his farm at 1 cent per pound, he said.
Asked as to the number of cabbage on an acre, he said it would run from 7,000 to 10,000. The cabbage he brought us weighed about four lbs., which he said was better than his average. Taking two pounds as the average weight it will be seen that 7,000 cabbage will yield the grower $140.00 per acre, which is not so bad as a money crop.

PEOPLE ARE BETTER OFF UNDER PROHIBITION LAW

Westerville, O., Feb. 21.—Economically, the United States is so much better off under prohibition that a majority of the voters could not be induced to return to the old saloon days, according to a statement issued here today from national headquarters by Dr. F. Scott McHenry, general superintendent of the Anti-Saloon League of America.

"Henry Ford, one of the greatest employers of labor in the United States," said the statement, "illustrated this recently in a statement in which he reported that the surveys he had made of the effect of prohibition on his employees, showing conditions before and after prohibition, contrasted 'like day and night'."

"Mr. Ford's survey showed that while before prohibition each group of 6,000 men employed in his plant gave trouble because of drink, now as many as ten in each group of 5,000 give trouble from that cause.
He also stated that men are working better, wasting less and saving more."

"Prior to prohibition it was the usual wording of the law that the cane, the brewery, distilleries and saloons would bring on business depression and industrial stagnation, and that chaotic conditions generally would follow the adoption of the dry policy."

"But seven years without saloons shows a different result. According to a recent report of the United States Treasury Department, bank deposits in 28,000 institutions totalled more than $48,800,000,000 an increase of about $2,300,000,000 over 1925, and that under prohibition and for the first time in history there are more savings accounts in this country than families."

"No, the American voter is happy in his new economic standing and he does not want to return to saloons and poverty."

WOMEN MAY ASSIST IN BOOSTING COTTON PRICES

Atlanta, Ga., Feb. 21.—A return to the general use of cotton in dresses, undergarments, hosiery and other things, belonging to Mildred Wardrobe is urged as one remedy for the prevailing low price of cotton by W. A. Gilreath, head of the Atlanta cotton section of W. A. Gilreath and the treasurer of the Georgia Commercial Exchange. By getting back to the use of cotton, Mr. Gilreath pointed out, a greater demand for the staple would rise in response to the demand.

"If the people of the country, and especially women, would put aside the expensive silk for the more durable and much more practical cotton garments, the use of cotton would jump to such an extent that soon the farmer would be rejoicing, and then the farmer's family probably would put aside cotton hosiery and cotton undergarments to wear the more generative silk," said Mr. Gilreath. "It is human nature. Even the farmer, in affluence, might be tempted to try silk socks."

Mr. Gilreath says that it was wartime and after-war prosperity that contributed most to the popularity of silk shirts and socks for men, silk hosiery and silk undergarments for women, and the abolition in many homes of cotton house dresses.

A lot of people are still for prohibition because it enabled the country to get rid of the bar-room quarters.
